inker place heen Epropean and Malay sailors, which we tegret to add, some soldiers of the 99th are victims. We believe the following one the facts of the case, which has now assumed this most recions proportions, Mulay sailors being employed for Coast work in preference to European, been dissolved by untual consent of the Partners. the latter as a body are reduced to starvation from this date. Monday night, with the intention of taking vengeance on their fortunate rivals. A meles ensued, the Malays of course using their knives. wounded, and three of the soldiers were killed patroonge hitherto so liberally bestowed. f at least so we understand.] Lost night a number of men of the 99th heut on revenge, attacked the Malay boarding houses which are situated on the scene of the strife. Several of these establishments they under the firm of Lincker & Co. gutted and pulled down, but they neither killed nor injured any one.

Suspecting some such intention, a picket in charge of an officer was sent from the barracks to avert if possible any catastrophe. The officer soums to have behaved with rare coolness; for he beamied the assailants in by assailants smelling a pat, attempted to make i off, but found themselves in a trau. All would lave ended quietly had not a body of Police unfortunately agrived lat the scene. They of course came up belind the picket, when without making any anquiries, they fired as we WL have this day established Ourselves at this understand, night autongst the soldiers, killing two on the spot and wounding another mortotly. The conduct of the officer of the 99th is beyond all praise, for even then he controlled his men. We suppose the Police were in charge. of Tospector Ellis, or some such ruffian; or. possibly of an officer, who a little while since was deep in a forecastle. The whole affair reffacts the utimest disgrace of the executive of this Colony directly, and on the legislative indirectly. We shall have a much to say on the subject.

These individuals has been stigmatized astresson. These we were not idle either. We smashed solid shots are indications on the surface of some change that through her open parts, threw from our top hand-must have been silently working beneath. We cannot hope that the Southern invasion will be a closing incident of the war; but the different, or rather the abated feeling it excites in the North gives some faint hope that a state of opinion is being created which will not how! down those who speak of peace as public enemice. This sudden movement by General Lee hus, for the time, diverted attention from the army encamped before Petersburg. No movement by Goneral Grant is reported. All we learn in that he is waiting for heavy siege artillery to reduce the town by a distant bombardment. This interval Lee has soised for an operation that may possibly compel the Washington Government to withdraw a part of Grant's force to the Potemac for the defence ; of the capital, In this case Leu's movement, will succeed as a diversion. If not, it seems to have succeeded as a "raid" on a very extensive scale. The strength of the Confederate force is so variously estimated that the numbers seem. to be guigged at hazard rather than onloulated on any data. It rises to 50,000 mon or sinks to 20.000 according to circulastances or the degree . of alarm existing. The city of Baltimore and a numerous Bedernl garrison, kept there for volitical as much as military reasons. It could repress any expressions of sympathy, with the South without being too distant from Washington n case of need. This garrison, or all of it that could be spared from the city met the Southern troops on the 9th July, on the little river called the Monogaey The Federals were commanded by General Wallace, whose name emerges from obecurity by its courtexion-with the disnater of the He was defeated and driven in on Baltimore in disorder. The city, since the Federal occupation has been prepared for defence but t has nover been described as a very strong nosition. The Confederates bowever, did not follow up their advantage. Their main body turned "inthe direction of Washington," or due south und on the 11th of July was willing air miles of the center of the Federal Government, On that; evening Mr. Lincoln might hear the Southern cannon from the windows of the White House and it was war in grim carnest that had swept so near the much coveted residence. In retaliation for the destruction of the houses of some of the Southern leaders in Virginia and Louisians the Confederates are said to have burnt the mansion of Mr. F. O. Bisir, equally well-known as a politician on the opposite side. Washington has often had an alarm; but never before with such visible excuse. The citizens of London may imagine something like the state of affairs in Washington by supposing the troops of an invading Power havbe advanced as near to the Houses of Parliament as Kew-bridge. They might not think this disagreeable proximity compensated by the novel advantage of being able to witness real fighting within an omnibus ride from the Bank. As all communication between Washington and Bultimore had been out off, it is not surprising that Philadelphia and New York were for three days agitated by rumours of the notical capture of the reat of Government. But as the Confederates had torned sside from Baltimore, so they refrained from nny attack on Washington. It may therefore be inferred they are not in force sufficient to make any | Splendid Ruoms: attempt to capture either city. Their movements subsequent to the 31st are not known. They have retired from Washington, but ure still north of the Potomac. The Federals were being reinforced from Grant's army, and up to the date of the last reporta the Southern raid had not essumed the appearance of an investon. But the Federal territory had suffered soverely. The Confederates have obtained immense quantities of supplies, and have destroyed the railroads leading to the North The brief operation has also illustrated the disadvantaged that a railway may prove in actual war, unless the brains are employed with some circumspection. A Baltimore train, conveying the Federal General Frankin, and all his Staff being incautiously driyen into the Southern lines, was surrounded, and the General and all his mides made prisoners. A train filled with Prouch revolutionists was taken | 418 5 in precisely the same manner, in 1849, on the Belgian fronteir. During these events, the paper price of gold varied in a range of 30 per cent. 1 rose to nearly 280, and subsided, when the worst period of clared was over, to 250. 12, was just at this juncture that Mr. Personden the shedessor of Mr. Chase, arrived in New York and applied to the bankers for a new loan. He wishes to obtain s temporary advance of 50,000,000 dollars until the lat of September. The cost of the war is thus impressed on the mind of the North, ut the same moment that its dangers are visible on Northern soil and its diffisulty or hopelessnoss in Virginia. The lessons of experience of all kinds are coming in quick succession. It will task the inventive faculty of the Government press to represent the occurrences of the past week as other than disastrous. We have never heard that Charleston o Richmond has been thrown into such alarm as Bal timore and Washington have felt for several days. The Confederacy is more formidable as an enemy than gyer. Its Government can engage Grant and his enormous army while it stretches its arm over him and deals a brow in the North itself in every rection of society. In the lower classes of the community there appears to be beginning a dim mass of the people have filled the rarks of the GODOWNS at Wasons.
